PROJECT UPDATE: Oct. 28, 2016

OPERATIONAL TRANSFORMATION KICKOFF

HPEC East was packed Wednesday morning as some 90 hospital staff members gathered to hear from the architect and designers about the next phase of our pre-design planning: operational transformation. This is where we begin diving into the details of how we want the new Samaritan North Lincoln Hospital to function, which will help to determine its design.

It's easy to get confused because there have been, and will continue to be, many meetings exploring many different aspects – big questions, inpatient care, patient experience, women's services, short stay, outpatient, supply chain, etc. Keep in mind that the overriding purpose of these meetings is to gather input from as many different perspectives as possible so the architect can have enough information to design what we envision... an excellent, efficient, right-sized and patient-centered hospital for our community!

PATIENT EXPERIENCE SKITS

Wish we had room to show all of the photos from the recent session exploring big ideas for our new hospital, but here are a few. Enjoy!

Right, Cass Nair, Lorraine McColm and Becky Smith act out a spa experience.
