

New Samaritan hospital coming to Lincoln City

samhealth.org/NewHospitalLincolnCity

PROJECT UPDATE: July 9, 2019
Issue No. 48

Parking, access, wayfinding and other logistics

Leadership is busy planning the best way to help patients find their way around the hospital campus next spring, during a four-month period when the new hospital will be open, the main parking lot is still under construction, and the old hospital is being demolished.

While parking is always a top-of-mind concern, other details need special consideration, such as:

- Safe transport of inpatients and emergency department patients to the free-standing MRI building located on the far side of the hospital demolition zone.
- Safe and easy access to the new Emergency Department for ambulances, private vehicles and pedestrians.
- Clearly marked parking and pathway to patient registration.

Temporary signage, extra volunteer help, and lots of information shared with the public and staff will help make this process as smooth as can be.

Meanwhile, subcontractors continue to make quick progress inside and outside our new hospital building, working in phases. From halls that look nearly ready to be painted to large open spaces still being framed, work is being carefully orchestrated for completion by December, as shown in photos:

- 1: Emergency Department main public entrance, with new windows reflecting the old hospital
- 2: An "offstage" hallway to be used by staff only
- 3: Looking east down the public ED hallway
- 4: Employee entrance near the loading dock
- 5: Crews working on exterior of rooftop mechanical room
- 6: Framed-in nursery observation window

